Hans Boserup is an attorney admitted to the Danish Supreme Court, an appointed mediator in a Danish appeal court and a university lecturer. He has trained more than 2,000 mediators in what is needed to solve conflicts and re-establish a more satisfying life for everyone involved. He has been working with a variety of mediation methods used in countries all across the globe with achieved settlement rate of more than 90%. Through more than 3,500 litigations and other disputes he has observed that mediators work very differently and that involved parties become elevated or paralysed by micro dynamics activated by opponents or inattentive third parties.

Hans Boserup has chosen to divide a variety of mediation processes into six workable mainstreams:

1. Generic mediation
2. Settlement-driven mediation
3. Cognitive systemic mediation
4. Transformative mediation
5. Humanistic mediation
6. Narrative mediation

To maintain a satisfying work mode, you must identify what is working.

Through a one day master class session, Hans Boserup will demonstrate and illustrate the differences and commonalities between six ways of mediation styles.

You will get excited and confused, you will most probably not get comprehensive skills for your personal practice, but you will get an insight and sense of "Why it is so difficult to mediate well, when it looks so easy?"

Hans Boserup will show you the art of mediation within a variety of shades and contours.

In-depth learning and training of different mediation modes will then be a subject of further studies for you!
